WHY Drought Tolerant Plants?

Drought tolerant plants need to be watered once to twice a month only.

The amount of water needed is minimized, which can reduce the carbon footprint and help to slow down the climate change.

They are usually easy care, beginners can manage as well.

The Nature Conservancy
is an international organization which works on protecting the lands and water
with the best available conservation science.

WHY TNC?

Lands and water are the key elements
for the plants to thrive.

Flora Houses believes that everything on earth is closely connected with the nature.
Humans should co-exist with nature.

And joining hands with partners who share
similar mission makes us stronger.

Humans are small.
Our power may be
as small and limited as ants.

however,
if everyone takes a step forward,
the joint power can be much greater than those superheroes in fictions.
